

The book was found

Lost: Lost And Found Pet Posters From Around The World

Synopsis

One of the first impulses of an owner who's lost a pet is to canvas the neighborhood with quickly made posters. And even if we haven't seen the wanderer in question, many of us stop to read these notices, which are often charming combinations of heartfelt pleas, humor, and handmade art. For the last decade, Ian Phillips has collected lost pet posters from around world. In Lost, Phillips selects from his vast collection those posters notable for their cleverness, humor, sorrow, entreaties, rewards, and-in several instances-sheer outlandishness ("Lost Lost Lost: one brown and white 'mottled' street duck. Does not answer to the name of Neither Norman"). For designers, artists, or anyone who wants to tap into the human and creative side of our everyday lives under stress, Lost is a book that tells a story on every page. As a collection, the posters represent an authentic folk art that expresses a commonality between the readers and the makers from the United States to China. For pet owners everywhere, and for anyone who has very stopped to read a lost pet poster, Lost is a heart-warming tribute.

Book Information

Paperback: 208 pages

Publisher: Princeton Architectural Press; 1 edition (April 1, 2002)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 1568983379

ISBN-13: 978-1568983370

Product Dimensions: 5.7 x 1 x 7 inches

Shipping Weight: 15.2 ounces

Average Customer Review: 3.8 out of 5 stars See all reviews (12 customer reviews)

Best Sellers Rank: #820,646 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #135 in Books > Crafts, Hobbies & Home > Pets & Animal Care > Pet Loss #738 in Books > Humor & Entertainment > Humor > Cats, Dogs & Animals #1302 in Books > Arts & Photography > Architecture > Drafting & Presentation

Customer Reviews

This fabulous, funny, poignant book is a compendium of lost pet posters -- homemade and heartfelt -- collected from around the world. Pets are depicted in everything from old photos (my favorite is the picture of "Pudding," a rotund and grouchy-looking cat) to children's scratchy drawings, and you will fall in love with every one of these poor misplaced animals and their ever-hopeful owners. They range from the strangely strident (witness the fellow who has produced a poster announcing he has found a Siamese cat, but will only return it if the owner can produce five forms of I.D.) to the hysterically funny (often unintentionally -- like that very same Siamese-finder). Ian Phillips has put together a charming, whimsical little book, and it would make a completely brilliant gift for any pet lover on your list.

I love his work and collecting these pet posters is a stroke of genius. Anyone who's ever had a pet and who has had to write one of these posters will be blinking back tears of sympathy, even if you acknowledge the ugliness of other people's pets, for some here are real lollapaloozas. Mostly you take your hat off to the eternal virtue of hope, for some of these people have faith deeper than rivers if they believe that you'd be able to recognize their cat or dog from the miserably scanned old photo of the animal, sometimes off in a corner of a photo looking completely anonymous or so dark you can't tell what you're supposed to be looking at. The texts Phillips collects are as heartbreaking as the photos, and again for every clearcut description of an animal, there's quite a few in which it's like the old parable of the blind man and the elephant. As you pore through this book you can only hope all of these owners found their pets in this world and if not in this world, maybe in the next. LOST is a postmodern assemblage with old fashioned heart and soul, it looks good and it feels good too.

In a brief introduction, Toronto-based illustrator and designer Ian Phillips tells us he began collecting lost pet posters when he lived in Switzerland and his roommate's cat ran away. Posters are separated into Dogs, Cats, Birds and Others; the latter category includes rabbits, cows, hamsters, rats, snakes and ferrets. Posters range from those drawn by children to those displaying sophisticated wit and/or design, and represent fugitives in the US, Canada, Mexico, Australia, Europe, Japan and Africa. Each entry is on one page that shows the poster with the location identified beneath it. Facing pages make a flip drawing of pets walking across the page, and the book concludes with the author's Missing Pet Poster Tips and some factoids. The book is more interesting in premise than selection, I thought. Some were poignant but many were not. Still, I'm glad I got this -- the picture of our cat "Pudding" is almost worth getting the book by itself! -- and it would make a fun gift for pet lovers you know.

This fabulous, funny, poignant book is a compendium of lost pet posters -- homemade and heartfelt -- collected from around the world. Pets are depicted in everything from old photos (my favorite is the picture of "Pudding," a rotund and grouchy-looking cat) to children's scratchy drawings, and you will fall in love with every one of these poor misplaced animals and their ever-hopeful owners. They range from the strangely strident (witness the fellow who has produced a poster announcing he has found a Siamese cat, but will only return it if the owner can produce five forms of I.D.) to the hysterically funny (often unintentionally -- like that very same Siamese-finder). Ian Phillips has put together a charming, whimsical little book, and it would make a completely brilliant gift for any pet lover on your list.

Interesting idea, i did enjoy the book but some of the posters were really boring and very rigid. I think if you are making this as an entertaining book, try to include mostly extraordinary postings. Over wise it will look like an archive for people "who study the case".

I liked the idea of this book very much. However, the quality of the posters was a let-down. I don't know what the original quality was, but it looks just like a photo-copied group of posters thrown together. If all the originals were in black and white, then the quality is okay. If, however, some of the original posters were in colour, they should have been so reproduced for this book.

Lost is one of my favorite books of the year and one of my favorite illustrated book of all time. The combination of brilliant illustrations, fantastic design and real heart make this a true gem. I read it from cover to cover and wept all the way through. There is just so much poignancy here--so much said in so few words about the bond between people and their animals. You couldn't find a better gift for an animal-lover.

This book makes a fine gift for those with a quirky sense of humor or who appreciate found objects/art. The collection of posters has an interesting variety, but some of the posters lack the same interest and obscurity of others. The foreign posters are certainly worth a laugh. The concept of the book is very funny, but as other reviewers have mentioned, it would have been a more successful book if the tone of the more creative and funny posters was carried throughout the entire book.

Download to continue reading...

Lost: Lost and Found Pet Posters from Around the World Wet Pet, Dry Pet, Your Pet, My Pet (Dr. Seuss Nursery Collection) Littlest Pet Shop My Big World of Little Pets: A Pet Journal and Collection Record Homes Around World River and Sea Homes Macmillan Library (Homes Around the World - Macmillan Library) Homes Around World Portable Homes Macmillan Library (Homes Around the World - Macmillan Library) My Dog Has Died: What Do I Do?: Making Decisions and Healing the

Trauma of Pet Loss (Book 2 Pet Bereavement Series) The Everything Pet Rabbit Handbook: Your Ultimate Guide to Pet Rabbit Ownership, Training, and Care Training Your Pet Ferret (Training Your Pet (Barron's)) The Loss of a Pet: A Guide to Coping with the Grieving Process When a Pet Dies The Pet Loss Companion: Healing Advice from Family Therapists Who Lead Pet Loss Groups Animal Reincarnation: Everything You Always Wanted to Know! about Pet Reincarnation plus "how to" techniques to see, feel & communicate with your deceased pet Remembering My Pet: A Kid's Own Spiritual Remembering Workbook for When a Pet Dies The Feast Nearby: How I lost my job, buried a marriage, and found my way by keeping chickens, foraging, preserving, bartering, and eating locally (all on $40 a week) Lost (and Found) in Space Finding God in the Waves: How I Lost My Faith and Found It Again Through Science The Titanic: Lost and Found (Step-Into-Reading, Step 4) Cooking Up A Storm: Recipes Lost and found from the Times-Picayune of New Orleans The Lost Kitchen: Recipes and a Good Life Found in Freedom, Maine Dispatches from Pluto: Lost and Found in the Mississippi Delta Glory Lost and Found: How Delta Climbed from Despair to Dominance in the Post-9/11 Era

Dmca